WED., Oct. 21st The Gospel of John: Heart of the Storm

Peter got a chance to do something no one else can say they did: walk on water. As we read this story, there's a deeper meaning to just a performative act and what Jesus was trying to demonstrate as He called Peter to an act of faith that is not soon forgotten.

DEVOTION - THINKING ABOUT OTHERS

Let us consider how to stimulate one another to love and do good deeds.

--Hebrews 10:24

Have you been caught up in your own worries and fears? Has your focus been on yourself? You probably realize that doesn't really help your situation (Matthew 6:25-34). Certainly, you know your attention would be better spent on what God would have you do, which is "seek first His kingdom and His righteousness" (Matthew 6:33). And you do that by loving others in His name.

Understand that the enemy will tempt you to dwell on your problems because it stops you from taking part in the body of Christ. But can you imagine if the apostle Paul had gotten mired in worry and self-pity when he was in prison? He wouldn't have written so much of the New Testament. But instead, because he stayed faithful in encouraging others, Paul would hear good news about how the churches were growing and how believers were stepping out in faith, and could say, "This is all worth it."

So instead of entertaining thoughts about what is wrong, think about how you can help others grow in their faith and mature in their giftedness. In other words, focus your energy on helping others be more like Jesus. Because that is certainly worth of your attention.

"Jesus, give me opportunities to help other believers grow in their faith for Your glory. Amen."
